

ABSTRACT

The invention disclosed herein is a method and device for parallel detection and analysis of fluorescently labeled biopolymer molecules on a two-dimensional array using lasers for consecutive specific excitation to cause total internal reflection and a charge couple device for emission detection.

09744960.12000